

Public Static Boys Abstract

Alex Laughlin – Chris Tucker – Andrew Nesbett

The goal of our project is to apply our software development skills to a free, open-source, humanitarian project with remote collaborators. We are choosing to work on Sahana Eden, a platform designed to provide solutions for Disaster Management, Development, and Environmental Management sectors. Specifically, we aim to fix several open issues present in the source code on Github in order to transition our theoretical knowledge into real-world applications.
